CHILDREN EVERYWHERE

It is Their Week at the World's Fair and They Turn Out.

The Public Schools Closed and the Little Ones Swarm the Grounds by the Thousands.

WORLD'S FAIR GROUNDS, Oct. 16—Paid admissions at the fair yesterday were 81,769. Today began children's week at the fair, and it was a beautiful, clear, warm day for the youngsters. Not only did nature smile at them, but their activity and bright faces caused more than one staid person to stop and beam on them. The little ones were everywhere, up on the Ferris wheel, through the plaisance, in the buildings, about the grounds, and the more saving ones, who had stored their pennies for this day, proudly purchased their own tickets for a ride in the gondolas or electric launches. Thousands upon thousands of the little ones swarmed through the grounds.

Commencing this morning the public schools were closed for the week and the attendance from them was very large. The parochial schools were also generally closed. The children crowded the street cars and the omnibuses and eagerly clamored for admission. But there was no crush and no delay in getting them through. The schools of the city were all closed and will be for the rest of the week.

A number of philanthropic citizens and business firms provided specimen trains and wagon transportation for the pupils of various schools to the fair. Many thousand tickets were given them by others and the school teachers presented the tickets to their classes. One wholesale baker, provided any amount of sandwiches and pies, free, for the children, so they had about everything they needed to make their day happy without expense. Some of the teachers came in charge of their classes and a great many of the children had the protection of their parents.

The school exhibits of the different states and institutions were made central visiting points. The children were shown what other pupils less fortunate than they had accomplished and they were told what children in some of far away schools were doing and what kind of schools they had.

The ten cent admission rate has been made effective for all under eighteen years of age, so those of the higher grades and high schools will be able to put in a full week at the white city at a cost at trifle above that of one days admission at the ordinary fair rate.

The new liberty bell was rung at noon, the school children and their teachers taking part in the exercises.

The plaza west of the administration building was covered with a throng of youngsters. The exercises were under the direction of Miss Lute Gordon, of Atlanta, Ga. A number of world's fair officials made short addresses to the boys and girls. Then the big bell tolled out in honor of the memory of Pestolozzi, of Switzerland, the man who first advanced the theory of common education among the masses. Masters Hendricks and Maynard, of New York, tugged at the rope attached to the heavy clapper manfully until the tones reverberated throughout the white city. The ringing was also in honor of Froebel, founder of the kindergarten system, and Horace Mann, founder of the American common school system.

TEACHERS MAKE COMPLAINT.

Protest Against a Rule Adopted by the Indiana State Superintendent.

INDIANAPOLIS, Oct. 16—The teachers throughout the state are protesting vigorously against a new rule just adopted by the superintendent of public instruction regarding appeals from the decisions of county superintendents. Whenever a teacher applies for a license and is refused one for any cause, or is graded lower than he believes he should be, an appeal lies to the state superintendent, whose duty it is to investigate and decide the question at once. In a code of rules recently issued the state superintendent requires $50 to be deposited whenever an appeal is taken, and the rules are invoking a great deal of criticism. No costs have heretofore attended such appeals, no dissatisfaction ever resulted, and the teachers cannot see why $50 should be deposited when no damages can be awarded under the law or cost collected. They believe that the new rule will prevent aggrieved teachers from prosecuting appeals and thus increase the power of the local superintendent to the detriment of the schools.

CHICAGO DISAPPOINTED.

President and Mrs. Cleveland Cannot Visit That City.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 16.—It seems now certain that the president and Mrs Cleveland will not visit the world's fair before its close as it was hoped they would. A few days ago President Higginbotham, of the exposition company, wrote a letter to the president cordially and earnestly urging him and Mrs. Cleveland to attend, but the president, in a letter sent to Mr. Higginbotham on Saturday, announced that he was unable to leave the city at this time.

INDIANAPOLIS SALOONS CLOSED.

Sunday in the City as Quiet as a Cemetery Through the Mayor's Order.

INDIANAPOLIS, Oct. 16.—The order of Mayor Denny to close the saloons on Sunday was rigidly enforced yesterday, and for the first time in three months the bartenders had a day off. During the day the police made several visits of inspection to the saloons in their several districts and paid special attention to back way entrances, but the saloons were all closed and the neighborhoods were as quiet as a cemetery, the Sunday loafers having given their usual haunts a wide berth. In cases where saloons and groceries are combined the law was enforced with the same vigor, the proprietors having been notified that opening their places of business for any purpose would result in their arrest. John Miller, a Shelby street saloon keeper, was the only one who had the temerity to defy the order and he was promptly arrested.

BRITISH SQUADRON.

It is Expected at Taranto This Evening.

The Italians Look Upon Its Presence as a Counter Demonstration to the Russians at Toulon.

TARANTO, Oct. 16—This city and seaport now present a most animated scene, in expectation of the arrival today of the British Mediterranean squadron, which reaches this port during the day, in spite of untrustworthy reports that the visit would not take place. Consequently the inhabitants of this seaport and neighborhood are preparing for five days of elaborate festivities, as the British squadron will remain here until the 20th. After leaving this port, Great Britain's war vessels will go to Sleepay, where they will remain until October 28. Visitors all day yesterday and this morning have been pouring into the town and taking up quarters at the hotels and elsewhere in order to be sure of finding sleeping accommodations during their stay here. The population of Taranto is only about 25,000 but over 50,000 people are already here and thousands are arriving every hour, so that by night time the city will be overflowing with visitors. Board and lodgings at the hotels already command enormous prices and bid fair to reach higher prices still before the day has passed. Rooms in the smallest houses are at a premium and the hotels are already turning away crowds of would be guests. A first-class torpedo dispatch boat, with eight prominent naval officers on board, left this port during the morning in order to welcome the British squadron, which, it is expected, will be sighted at any moment. That the Italians regard the visit of the British squadron to Taranto as a counter demonstration to the visit of the Russian fleet to Toulon is as evident as the French look upon Russian war ships in their waters as an intimation upon the part of the Czar that he will support France against the dreibund in the event of a European war. On the other hand Great Britian may not officially intend that the visit of her war ships to Italy should be regarded as a counter move to the Russian display at Toulon, but there is no doubt that it is so regarded. In this connection it may be added that the Novoe Vremye of St. Petersburg says that Great Britain has done everything possible to divest the Taranto visit of the character of a counter demonstration to the Toulon festivities, adding that Russia and France ought to recognize with satisfaction that Great Britain has determined to preserve an attitude of neutrality based upon her faith in the pacific assurances of France and Russia.

IN OUR PRAISE.

The Duke de Veragua Talks of His Visit to Our Nation.

MADRID, Oct. 16—The Duke de Veragua, with his family, has returned here from his visit to the United States, after having stayed for some months at San Sebastian. The duke is eloquent in praise of the reception given him by the great American people. He says his ancestor, Columbus, could never have imagined that such a great nation as the North Americans could ever have flourished in the lands he discovered across the Atlantic, that the highest state of civilization should exist in the new world where Columbus found only savages. The duke considers himself fortunate in having accepted the invitation of the United States, as through the generosity of that great people, and out of gratitude to the family of Columbus for his discovery of the new world (from which event the United States have been the principal gainers), the dilapidated fortunes of the descendants of Columbus are likely to be repaired.

TO DECIDE A TAX LAW.

Arguments are Being Made Before the Supreme Court.

INDIANAPOLIS, Oct. 16.—The question of the constitutionality of the new tax law, from whose operations the Pennsylvania, Big Four and other big companies have appealed to the United States supreme court, are being argued before that tribunal today. The companies are fighting the law on the ground that the state board of tax commissioners has exercised judicial powers with which it cannot be clothed by a mere enactment of the legislature, and that the assessments as fixed by the board is a practical confiscation by the state of railroad property. There is now in excess of $1,500,000 in taxes tied up by the suit and the interest in the coming decision is coextensive with the state, as it will affect every county. It is conceded in official circles that a decision adverse to the state will necessitate a special session of the legislature this winter, as a new tax law will have to be framed.

WATERY GRAVES

Now Contain the Bodies of Eighteen Persons.

The Dean Richmond Goes Down, Carrying Her Crew and Passengers to the Bottom of the Lake.

BUFFALO, N. Y., Oct. 16.—The steamer Dean Richmond was lost in the storm on the lake Saturday, with all on board. Her crew numbered eighteen people, and their bodies are now being washed ashore near Dunkirk, off which the vessel foundered. The first that was heard of this disaster was at 9 o'clock yesterday morning, when the captain of the Helena reported having sighted the Dean Richmond off Long Point, where she seemed to be laboring under difficulties.

Later Captain Jack Tierney, of the steamer W. H. Stevens, reported that he sighted the Richmond in the middle of the lake about four miles this side of Erie. One of her stacks was missing, and while he was looking the other stack and spar went by the board. She was laboring heavily in the trough, as though her steering gear had become disabled. Her cargo was eighty tons of merchandise from Toledo to Buffalo. She belonged to the Toledo, St. Louis and Kansas City line. Her crew consisted of about eighteen souls, of which the following is a list:

LIST OF THE VICTIMS.

G. W. Stoddard, captain, Toledo.

George Boyson, second mate, East Toledo.

Samuel Meadows, wheelman, Toledo.

E. Wheeler, lookout, Toledo.

Ernest Frank, lookout, North Toledo.

A B Dodge, second cook, Toledo.

Evans, chief engineer, shipped at Toledo.

Jacob Earnest, deck hand, Toledo.

George M. Schilling, porter, Toledo.

Walter Goodyear, first mate, Ottawa, Lake Michigan.

J. E. Brady, wheelman, residence unknown.

Mrs. Retta Ellsworth, stewardess, Aylmer, Ontario.

Frank Hilton, second engineer, Port Huron.

Therman Beathan, fireman, residence unknown.

William Largenfrei, fireman, residence unknown.

Frank Patten, deck hand, residence unknown.

Unknown man, deck hand, shipped at Buffalo.

DUNKIRK, N. Y., Oct. 16—Three bodies are now lying in the morgue here and have been identified by the Buffalo agents of the steamer Dean Richmond as A. B. Dodge, second cook; Samuel Meadows, wheelsman, and Wm Brown, seaman. Two more bodies have been recovered six miles from this place, a man and woman, the latter being Mrs Retta Ellsworth, stewardess, and are now on their way here. A life boat belonging to the ill-fated steamer was secured by the lighthouse keeper, about 6 o'clock this morning. H. E. Hyde, the Buffalo agent on the line, is now here. He says the Richmond did not put in at Erie as reported, and shows a dispatch from William H. Hill, of Erie, dated Sunday, 8:19 a m, as follows: "Have not seen steamer Dean Richmond." Searching parties have started along the shore after bodies and to collect what ever freight may be washed up.

Full Particulars of the Disaster.

BUFFALO, N. Y., Oct. 16—No other conclusion can now be reached than that the propeller Dean Richmond, with all on board, seventeen men and one woman, was lost in the great storm. The vessel put into Erie in a heavy gale at 3 o'clock on Saturday afternoon, coaled up and steamed out at 5 o'clock. "It's your last trip," were the prophetic words of an old lake man when he and others tried to dissuade Captain Stoddard from going out in the heavy sea.

The captain was one of the oldest and best navigators of the lake. He was proud of his staunch craft and confident of his own ability to sail her through the storm. At daybreak yesterday morning the beach between Van Buren and Dunkirk was found to be strewn with wreckage, including a large quantity of flour in barrels, sacks and bags. The wreckage and flour came in such quantity that it was certain a vessel had been lost, and soon a piece of the Dean Richmond's stern, with her name upon it, floated in and settled her identity.

A sharp lookout was kept along the shore for the bodies of the crew, and soon after daybreak the body of a man was discovered upon the beach at Hemlock Grange. The body was removed to the morgue at Dunkirk. By letters found on the body, the name of the drowned man was found to be O B Dodge, of Toledo. Two more bodies were found at 4 o'clock in the afternoon. They were picked up at Battery Point, east of Dunkirk. One of them was that of a Hollander, about twenty years of age, and the other that of a man of twenty five.

The latter had a small dark mustache. Neither body could be identified. The sum of $35 in bills was found on the body of the elder man, while the pockets of the other's clothes were turned inside out and contained nothing indicating that the body had been robbed. There were life preservers on all three of the bodies. Dodge had evidently been killed on the rocks, as his temple was fractured, and he had no water on his lungs or stomach. The other two men had been drowned.

It is believed that the Richmond struck upon the reef just west of Van Buren. This is proved by the manner in which the wreckage went ashore. It is a dangerous reef. Hundreds of barrels of flour were picked up on the beach. Farmers in the vicinity hauled large quantities to places of safety and will hold it until the owners demand it. Most of it is in good condition.

HAD PLAYED POKER.

This Was the Reason They Could Not Be Put to Sleep During "The Test of Endurance."

NEW YORK, Oct. 16—Senator Watson C Squire, of Washington state, and ex-Senator Wilbur F. Saunders, of Montana, arrived from Washington yesterday. Ex-Senator Saunders declared that in his judgment unconditional repeal of the Sherman act was dead. He believed that a compromise would be agreed upon this week, incorporating the best features of the Harris, Faulkner and Blackburn bills.

While Mr Saunders was chatting Col. Thomas P. Ochiltree walked into the Fifth avenue hotel. Catching sight of the Montana man, he exclaimed:

"Ah, senator, I see my old friends in the senate are standing by their guns. What a horrible mistake the gold bugs made when they counted on tiring out the silver senators. Why, Ed Wolcott and Santa Claus Stewart and Jones and the rest of them were never known to go to bed until six or seven o'clock in the morning. I've played poker with them for twenty hours at a stretch and then you had to keep your eye peeled or they would freeze you out. I tell you when you try to put that crowd to sleep you have undertaken the biggest job a man ever had on his hands. I'll bet on the poker crowd every trip."

"I guess you are right, colonel," replied Senator Saunders who knows a little about the game himself. "Wolcott never sleeps and as for Jones, I believe he can go a year without winking."

INDIANS LEAVE THEIR AGENCY.

Running Antelope's Band to Be Escorted Back to Standing Rock Agency.

PINE RIDGE, S. D., Oct. 15.—Fourteen mounted Indian police left here yesterday for the purpose of escorting Running Antelope and his band of about seven lodges, now encamped on White river, twenty-five miles north of here, to their own agency, Standing Rock, on the Missouri river. These Indians have been here for the past month or two and the government has decided that they shall go home. Orders were given them to this effect about ten days ago and some of them went then. The remainder, however, seems reluctant to move but it is believed that they will accompany the Indian police without resistance. The government has a strong man at the helm here in the person of Captain Charles G Penny, Sixth infantry, and the general feeling among the Indians is that of contentment.

SWEPT BY FLOOD.

One Hundred Persons Drowned in the Yellow River.

SAN FRANCISCO, Cal., Oct. 16—The steamer City of New York, arrived from Hong Kong via Yokohama, brings advices of a terrible accident at Iung-kun Ford, of the Yellow river, in the province of Rhosie. Three ferry boats were swept away by a flood and one hundred passengers drowned. The Japan papers report the loss on September 8 of the British bark Florence Treat, en route from Singapore to Shanghai. She was caught in a typhoon and driven on the rocks. Captain Paulson, wife, four children, and fourteen Chinese and Malay sailors perished. The captain's son, Daniel, one Chinese and one Malay escaped.

CONFESSES FOUR MURDERS.

William Whalen, of Ohio, Throws Light on Some Mysterious Crimes.

COLUMBUS, Ohio, Oct 16—William Whalen, a colored man, has confessed to Chaplain W. R. Dudley, of the state prison, that he was the author of four mysterious and brutal murders that have been committed near Yellow Springs, Greene county, in the last year. The victims were William Koogler, Louis Keys, Allen Wilson and an old farmer named Huppings. The first two were murdered at the same time. All were killed by blows from a dray pin.

BERT POPPER.

He is Wanted in New York for Bigamy.

SAN FRANCISCO, Oct. 16—A New York police officer now here has secured extradition papers for Bert Popper, wanted in New York on a charge of entering into a bigamous marriage with Mrs. Lelia Hallock, wife of Charles Hallock, of Moriches, Long Island. The woman committed suicide in the Gault house, Chicago, September 8, after, it is alleged, she had been deserted by Popper.

FIVE MILLION DOLLARS.

The Husband of Miss Maud Fisher, Formerly of This City, is One of the Heirs.

SAN FRANCISCO, Oct. 16.—There is being prepared for argument before the supreme court of Arizona a case which is bound to become as famous as any civil suit ever conducted in the United States. Upon the result hinges the disposition of an estate valued at over $5,000,000. The contest is over the wealth of John Walker, who died two years ago in the insane asylum at Napa, Cal., and is brought against his brother and half brother.

Shortly before his death Walker married a Miss Rice, but was put into the insane asylum by his brothers, William Walker, of Pasadena, Cal., and Lucien Walker, of Los Angeles. His wife claims a share of the estate, but the Arizona court declared the marriage illegal because Walker was insane at the time it was contracted. Mrs. Walker will appeal the case to the supreme court.

BADLY HURT.

William Buck, Poundmaster, Hurt by a Cow.

Dragged Quite a Distance and Kicked by a Vicious Animal—Lively Runaway at Noon.

William Buck, the city poundmaster, met with an accident yesterday which might have resulted fatally, which will lay him up for some days at least. Mr. Buck was called to McCulloch's park, on the west side, to take charge of a stray cow. He succeeded in catching the animal and was starting to the pound leading it by a rope, which he had wrapped around his wrist. The animal ran, throwing Mr. Buck down and kicking him on the head and under the eye, inflicting serious injury. The wounded man was taken to his home where a physician was summoned.

At noon today a transfer wagon belonging to the 'bus barn was demolished by a runaway team which was hitched to the wagon. The team started near the south depot and dashed up Calhoun street. A wheel was taken off in passing a coal wagon, and in front of the diamond hotel an electric street railway mast was struck. The top of the mast was jerked loose. The horses were caught further down the street. It was a wonder that no one was killed.

A NOTED INVENTOR.

A. D. Austin Dies From Bright's Disease.

During His Life He Was Paid Large Sums for His Patents—Other Deaths.

A. D. Austin died at noon today at his residence, No. 30 Leith street, aged fifty-three years. He leaves a wife and five children, four girls and one boy. The cause of his death was Brights disease. The deceased was an inventor of no mean ability. He was a locomotive engineer by trade but of late years has devoted his time to inventions. The Bowser Oil Tank Co., paid him $15,000 for his patent dustpan, and he has invented a patent stone crusher, shoe blacking box and a number of other useful, labor saving machinery. No arrangements have been made for the funeral.

At 3 o'clock this morning at the residence of his son-in-law, W. H. Hoffman, on West Berry street, occurred the death of Nathan Evans. The direct cause of his death was cancer of the stomach. The deceased was born in Montgomery county, Pa., December 23, 1813. He has nearly all his life been engaged in the iron business and twenty-five years ago established a large furnace in Paulding county, Ohio. He remained there many years and removed to Chester county, Pa., retiring actively from business. Three years ago he came to this city and has since made his home with his son-in-law. Nearly fifty years ago he was married to a Miss Reynolds. Of the union four children were born, two of whom are deceased. The wife survives and the two remaining children are Mrs W. H Hoffman and Henry L. Evans. The funeral services will be briefly held at the residence of Mr. Hoffman tomorrow morning at 11 o'clock by Rev. Moffat, after which the remains will be shipped to Lancaster county, Pa., for interment.

Nathan Evans was a man who was successful in life because of those qualities which go to make up a good citizen, a good parent and who contributed his just share to the material greatness of the commonwealth.

Elizabeth Weick, aged sixty-five, died at 3 o'clock this morning at the residence of her son-in-law, Andrew Dentel, No. 6 Hoffman. Her death was caused by the infirmities of old age. The deceased was born in Germany and came to this country eleven years ago. Her husband is dead and she leaves a family of grown children. The funeral will be held Wednesday morning, at 10 o'clock, from St. Mary's church.

M. L. Lucas, formerly one of the firm of Lucas Bro's, dry goods merchants, of this city, but now of Scranton, Pa., is the guest of Charles McDougal.

She has a cargo of 800 tons of merchandise from Boston to Chicago and the west, and is estimated to be worth about $100,000.

WORK OF A TRAMP

Causes the Terrible Railroad Disaster at Jackson.

Wanted to Get Off the Train Before It Reached the Station and Turned the Air Cock.

JACKSON, Mich., Oct. 16—It is now fully believed that the terrible railroad accident at Jackson last Friday was caused by a tramp, who was stealing a ride on the train and wanted to get off before the train reached the depot. Thinking it would make the train slack up he turned the cock behind the tank of the engine that connected the air brakes, which prevented the air brakes from working. This cock was found open when the train stopped and a tramp was seen standing on the platform while the train was in motion. Alfred T. Slayter, an old railroad man, witnessed the accident. He thinks this is the correct version of the accident. He says the engineer is not to blame, as he did everything in his power to stop the train. He stayed with the engine until the last moment, and Slayter saw him jump from the widow of his cab and fall in a heap on the track.

REFUSED TO SEE HER SPOUSE.

Indiana Woman, Deserted by Her Husband, Marries Another Man.

WABASH, Ind., Oct. 16—Twenty-three years ago Bluford Fleming, of Waltz township, this county, called at the courthouse and informed Dr. C. S. Ellis, then treasurer of the county, that he intended abandoning his family. He disappeared, and his wife believing him dead or gone for good, married Coleman McDonald, an estimable citizen of Somerset. Her two sons by Fleming have grown to manhood, one of them running a barber shop at Marion, and the other being in business at Janesville, Wis. Fleming was forgotten by everybody until Tuesday, when he suddenly appeared in Somerset inquiring for the family he had so basely deserted. Mrs. McDonald positively declined to see the truant husband, who hung around the neighborhood for a day or two and disappeared again.

NOT GUILTY.

The Jury So Found David J. Gibson, Marion Township.

The jury in the case of the state against David J. Gibson for hanging a dog which killed sheep, returned a verdict of not guilty. S. M. Robinson was attorney for the defendant.

ANTI-TRUST CONFERENCE

TERRIBLE EXPLOSION.

Three Men Killed While Handling Dynamite.

EMINGTON, Ill., Oct. 16—Men who were to dynamite an artesian well which is being bored at this place, prematurely discharged about fifty pounds of the stuff, killing three of the number and mortally wounding two citizens of the place, seriously injuring three others and damaging a number of business houses in the vicinity.

Sheriff Clausmeier this morning arrested Charles Hosser stealing $11 from Fred Smith. Both are young men from the country.

THE COURTS.

Frank Baxter on Trial for Horse Poisoning.

An Interesting Case Up Before Justice France—Other News in the Courts.

The case of the state against Frank Baxter for poisoning the valuable stallion of Nathaniel Beatty, at Monroeville, was begun before Judge Dawson and a jury this morning. His brother, it will be remembered, was tried on the same charge a few months ago. The first witness examined for the state was Dr. Myer, of this city. P. B. Colerick and Henry Colerick represent the state, and Harry Hanna and Lawyer France, of Decatur, the defense.

The case against a farmer of this county, who hung a dog up by the hind legs until it bled to death, because it killed his sheep, is on trial in the circuit court. Will Ryan appears for the state. THE SENTINEL referred to the case at length when it was in the justice courts.

The Ewing land cases will be heard tomorrow. These suits contest the title to valuable city property.

Chas. Klepper and Lizzie Readmiller, Frank P. Bobay and Clara M. Urbine have been licensed to wed.

The refusal of the supreme court of the state to grant a new trial in the celebrated Thomas Davidson murder case, notwithstanding the determined efforts made by his able counsel to get him one, is quite a feather in the cap of J. M. Robinson, who was the prosecuting attorney at the time Davidson was convicted. Mr. Robinson made a vigorous prosecution of this case, and, feeling confident of Davidson's guilt, fought for the affirmation of the verdict and sentence of the lower courts, and in this he was successful. Davidson was convicted about four years ago and since then has been in the northern prison. The decision of the supreme court will keep him there for life.

County Coroner Harrod has filed his verdict in the cases of Daniel L. Miner and Mrs. Mary Saylor, whose deaths have been recorded. In the former case he found that death was caused by "a fall between the shaft and wheel of a buggy while the man was intoxicated," and in the case of Mrs. Saylor the cause was found to be heart disease.

Maggie Rauner has sold to E. V. Emerick lot 5, J. Orff's sub addition, for $1,800; H. E. Moderwell to Lot F. Sharp, lot 10, Fry's addition, for $600; M. S. Wickliffe and wife to Lillian C. Clark, part of lot 27, county addition, for $2,250; Arthur Whitehead and wife to Hester P. AN INTERESTING CASE.

A case of considerable interest to railroad men, and one involving some legal questions, will come up for hearing in Justice France's court tomorrow morning at 9 o'clock.

Some time ago Harry Gilbert commenced suit before Justice Wilkinson on a claim of $50 against John Hendler, an employe of the Pennsylvania railroad company, and alleging that he was about to leave the state to defraud his creditors, had his wages due from the company attached.

The company filed an affidavit saying that Hendler had but one month's wages due him, and consequently was exempt from garnishment. Gilbert then gave a new bond, with F. C. Boltz as surety, and filed another attachment so as to make Hendler have two months' wages due him by the following pay day, from which he could collect and thus secure his claim.

This action tied up the wages due from the Pennsylvania company for two months and prevented him from drawing it. He now comes into the court of Justice France and begins an action against Gilbert and his bondsman, F. C. Boltz, for damages to which he has been put by the withholding of his wages from him. The case will be watched with interest by a large number of railroad men.

BIG FIGURES

Made by Dr. Worch Concerning the World's Fair Attendance.

Dr. L. A. Worch has some figures in regard to the number of persons who have attended the world's fair that are interesting. He says that up to last Saturday night the number of paid admissions to the fair since it opened amounted to 17,826,025, and the free admissions to 5,010,000, making a grand total of 22,836,025. Calculating that each person occupied two feet of ground the paid attendants, if placed in a row, would stretch over 6,945 miles, and the free attendants 1,905 miles, making a total mileage of 8,905, thus making a line of people, standing side by side that would reach three times across the continent. He has also figured out that to see the world's fair and walk through the buildings, the grand total traveled is something in excess of 118,000 feet or nearly twenty-three miles. The estimate does not include state, government or private buildings, the plaisance is ignored, and no account is taken of the long jumps from one building to another. A walk of about forty miles is necessary to do the whole fair.

THE HAYDN QUARTET

Win Praises at Bluffton, Where They Sing.

The Haydn quartet, of this city, took part in a musical concert given at Bluffton last Friday night under the management of Prof. Louis Falk, of Chicago, and in giving an account of the musical program the News, of that city, has the following complimentary words to say of them, and of Miss Nina Sturgis, a young lady who is well known here:

"The Haydn quartet, of Fort Wayne, then sang 'Hark, the Trumpet.' It was their first appearance in this city, but their fame was well known and immediately they were obliged to respond to a hearty encore, as they did in each succeeding number. A finer quartet of voices than this musical organization is hard to find anywhere and is not found within the borders of the state.

"Miss Nina Sturgis came next on the program and sang the aria—'Within My Chamber,' by Buck. Her appearance was the signal for a great outburst of applause. She sang exquisitely and was enthusiastically encored, but refused to make a second appearance, much to the disappointment of the audience. This was followed with a solo—'Resurrection'—by A. J. Lang, of the quartet, who, like the others preceding, could not escape without a reappearance."

WAS HE MURDERED?

Alexander Davidson's Relatives Ask an Investigation.

Coroner Harrod Did Not Hold an Inquest and Now Regrets that He Did Not.

Readers of THE SENTINEL will remember the account of the death of one Alexander Davidson, an eastern man en route for the fair. Mr. Davidson was missed from a Nickel Plate train and later found along the tracks near this city in an insensible and dying condition. Coroner Harrod did not hold an inquest and now regrets the fact that he did not. It seems that Davidson drew $100 from the bank just before starting from his home in Bridgport, Conn., for Chicago. The remains were taken east by a relative and it seems that the $100 is no where to be found.

Coroner Harrod has just received a letter from Attorney F. D. Fowler, of Bridgeport, who wants an investigation made. Mr. Fowler says he thinks it very strange that Davidson should fall off the train at 3 a. m. and no one know anything of how the accident occurred. Mr. Fowler advances the theory that the deceased must have been robbed and thrown from the train to die. THE SENTINEL advanced the theory of suicide while the traveler was temporarily insane. He was quite well along in years and, as has often been the case, might have been temporarily rendered insane by the confusion and excitement incident to such a long trip. At any rate the relatives will ask for a rigid investigation.

RESOLUTIONS PASSED

In Memory of H. V. Root by the Mercantile Association.

The following resolutions were adopted by the officers of the Fort Wayne Mercantile Accident association:

Whereas, Divine Providence in its infinite wisdom has seen fit to remove from our midst Herbert V. Root, our co-laborer and intimate friend of many years standing; therefore be it

Resolved, That in his loss the commercial travelers and business men of this city, have lost one whose voice was a tower of strength on the right side of all questions, and

Resolved, That this association by his death lost the services of an officer who was always zealous for all that was right and for the best interests, not alone of the association, but its members as well, and

Resolved, That we further tender our heartfelt sympathy to his widow in her great loneliness, and to his bereaved relatives and friends, and be it further

Resolved, That a copy of these resolutions be forwarded to the widow, a copy furnished each of the daily papers of the city of Fort Wayne, and that a copy of them be spread upon the minutes of this meeting. [Signed]

TWO FIRES.

Dr. A. P. Buchman Suffers From a Fire—Bloomingdale Blaze.

At 5:40 last evening an alarm of fire called the department to the home of Dr. A. P. Buchman, No. 151 West Washington street, which was in flames. The roof and garrett were ablaze, but the damage was confined to these portions of the residence. The contents of the house were removed before any damage by fire or water was done to them. The fire originated from a chimney blaze. The damage will amount to several hundred dollars. The house is owned by Andrew Glutting.

The fire department was called to Bloomingdale at 11 o'clock last night. The butcher shop of Lorenzo Haiber, on High street, was afire, but before much damage was done the flames were extinguished.

Mr. Whitelaw Reid, in writing to a young man who had asked for a list of the best books on business, said: "The best single treatise in the New Testament, next to this is the book of the Proverbs of Solomon. The best business man I have ever known memorized the entire book of Proverbs at twenty two."

A subscriber found a spider in his newspaper. The reader was superstitious. He wrote to the editor asking whether or not it was a bad omen. He said the spider was merely looking through the columns of the paper to see what merchants were not advertising so that he would know over what doors to spin his web without fear of disturbance.

But two weeks more of the world's fair remains. It has been attended by many of our people, and while it has been a grand sight to see and was a great educator, there is no doubt but that it has been an injury to the business of our city, for it has taken away thousands of dollars which would otherwise have been expended here and distributed among our merchants.

Senator Allen deserves no honor for the fifteen hour speech that he made in the senate. The man who talks the most often says the least. Some of us Iowa can jabber away all day and when they get through their hearers may not know what they have been talking about. Quality, not length, is the test of a good speech. Windy senators ought to be below par. Senator Allen comes from Nebraska, the land of cyclones.

When Mr. Cleveland was inaugurated as president of the United States in 1885, he took the oath of office, not on the copy of the Bible provided by the government for the purpose, but on the copy which belonged to his mother, worn by her fingers and stained by her tears. On the 4th of March last, when he was again sworn to the duties of his high office, he again brought with him his mother's Bible and was sworn in with it.

The city council will meet in special session tomorrow evening to solve the question as to who shall pay the shortage of $3,6[illegible] discovered in the assessments of the Tenth ward sewer. If the mistake was made by the city in its measurements, the property owners should be held for this shortage, as it would simply be correcting an error. If the mistake was caused by neglect in the construction of the sewer and the property owners do not get the benefit of it, they should not be compelled to pay twice for the same work.

The postoffice department at Washington has ruled that the writer has a right to regain possession of a letter providing he can prove to the satisfaction of the postmaster at the office from which it was sent that he was the writer of it. Even if the letter has arrived at its destination and before it has been delivered to the person to whom it was addressed, it may be recalled by the writer by a telegram through the mailing office. The reason assigned is that the United States is only the agent of the writer while the letter is in transit. This decision is important to business men and to private individuals.

Prompt Repeal Demanded.

The masses of the people of this nation are for the prompt and unconditional repeal of the silver law, and the delay to this important and necessary legislation by the obstructionist members in the United States senate is not only thwarting public opinion but damaging to the business and commercial interests of the country.

The recent depression in business circles and the financial panic came from the suicidal policy of purchasing silver, and now, if one of the worst panics this country has ever seen is to be averted, the senate must cooperate with the house and give us relief by the prompt repeal of the silver law.

There should be no compromise. One thing, and one thing only, will satisfy the people, and that is the prompt and unconditional repeal of the purchase clause of the Sherman law. It was for this that the present congress was called together, and they demand now that they do [illegible] and meet the condemnation of the people whose interests they [illegible]

Compromise would be an [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] the silver kings. Never [illegible] [illegible] the people [illegible] the senate [illegible] down it, and down it now, before it blocks the country any more. Let the repeal be forced and end the agitation. Do not accept any compromise by which the further purchase of silver is continued.

A Notable Carcass.

[illegible] New York city has [illegible]

This is said to be in the New York state senate a man who is in the habit of riding in the pantaloons cut the central parts of [illegible] and his feet [illegible] in front of him. He [illegible] of [illegible], and when the subject of Sunday opening of the world's fair was before the legislature in connection with the state appropriation he made many long speeches against that [illegible] And on the day he made the longest speech his [illegible] boots were standing beside his desk on the senate chamber, and his red yarn socks showed plainly between his short trousers and a pair of richly embroidered velvet slippers.

A citizen of South Bend, Wash., has a large dead whale on his hands which is proving a worse encumbrance than the traditional elephant not alone to himself but to the whole community. The whale became stranded at the mouth of the river, and the enterprising citizen bought it from the fisherman who captured it and made some money by placing it on exhibition. But the whale died, and after awhile it became very dead and the owner can't dispose of it. He tried, as a last resort, to burn it, and spent his profits on wood and kerosene, but the whale won't burn. The town is pervaded by an extremely ancient, fishlike smell, and the citizens are urgent in their demands that the owner of the whale shall remove his property in some expeditious way.

Among the curious products of the state of Maine are wooden bottles. These are made not for liquids, but for pills, powders and tablets. They are made of white birch, are cylindrical in form and shaped into form the neck. They are straight bored inside, and are provided with wooden stoppers; the stoppers, except of the very smallest sized bottles, are hollowed out inside, so that they may serve as a measure of [illegible]. These bottles, which are patented, are made in various sizes, from one smaller than one's little finger to about a four ounce size; they cost less than glass.

Until one goes into the country and discovers the periodicals that prevail there, he has no idea of the number of magazines that are published in New York. Most of them are edited with a pair of shears by some one who is in a hurry and has not much to pick from, and they are printed from old type and worn cuts on flimsy paper. In New York one never hears of them. The sign of the [illegible] Magazine displayed on a down town business street claims a circulation of fifty thousand a month. In the city it probably does not exceed ten. Like many another it is made for country.

Tidbits, according to competent authority, no surer way to destroy the teeth than by the want of brushing or rinsing after eating fruit. In California, where fruit of all kinds is so cheap for ten months of the year as to be within the reach of almost the poorest, beautiful teeth are rarely found, while it is a very common thing to see even young women with false teeth. Excess in the use of fruit sometimes produces undue acidity of the stomach, which also reacts on the teeth.

Occasionally a man is found carrying "business" to such extremes that he would rather treat than eat. Hence, if he would be happy himself, he must let other people be happy, or other people will not permit him to be. In the course of ages this doctrine comes to be one of the inherited ideas of humanity; hence the origin of the [illegible] The true line of conduct lies neither in altruism nor in egoism, says Spencer, but half way between.

Happy Poor.

Rev. C. A. Barrett has been examining into the condition of the poor people of many nations. He is an Englishman, and perhaps for that reason he finds the wretchedest poor are in America. He thinks that the depravity that accompanies poverty in this country is due to the fact that we have let our government become [illegible]

Ideal poverty, however, if there is any such thing, Mr. Barrett finds in Japan. The extremes of wealth and poverty found in western nations do not exist there. The Japanese are somewhat shocked at the huge houses the rich [illegible] of other nations build to live in. Their habits are simple. They do not spend their wealth in marble palaces, yachts or race horses, so that there is less difference in the style of living of rich and poor in Japan than elsewhere.

All the Japanese have courteous manners. The street laborer or serving woman has as polished manners as the gentleman of leisure. In this fine old nation politeness has been studied so many thousand years that it is bred in the bone of all the people. Therefore the children of rich and poor associate on terms of equality. If the rich have money to spare, they give it to the poor, with no sense of condescension on the one part or humiliation on the other. All are equal, and wealth seems a mere accident.

It is not likely that the wheat plethora will trouble the nations many years longer. Certainly the amount exported from India will soon cease to give annoyance to American farmers. There are now in India and subject to British rule 287,000,000 people. They are increasing at the rate of a billion a year. While the suppression of widow burning and of the drowning of girl babies is beneficial from the humanitarian view, it must be said that from the economic point of view it added that many more to the mouths to be filled. Population in India has now almost reached the limit of food production. Unless some way of increasing this production could be developed by improved agriculture, wheat will in another decade or less time have to be imported into instead of shipped out of India. Cheap Eastern labor will swarm through the world along with that which already crowds from China in an ever increasing stream. Truly, so different are the people of India from western nations that with a few [illegible] of [illegible] Great Britain, from the western [illegible] of Europe, governs the whole [illegible]. What were all these people born for anyway?

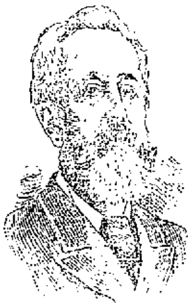
From 1871 to 1873 he was a member of the school board. In 1874 he was appointed a special justice of the Lowell police court, serving till 1884. In 1880 and 1881 he was elected mayor, and in 1885 was sent to the legislature. He was elected to congress in 1888, the same year he was elected to congress.

THE NEW VICEROY OF INDIA.

He Has Distinguished Himself In the Military and Diplomatic Service.

The appointment of Sir Henry Wylie Norman to be viceroy of India seems to have taken the political world of England by surprise. It was unexpected and in many respects at variance with precedents and the unwritten laws that have generally prevailed. The custom has been to appoint only civilians to the place. India is of course largely held by military occupation, but it has not been deemed policy to emphasize that fact by making a soldier viceroy. Service under the government in India has also generally been considered a grave disqualification, the theory being that the viceroy should not be a man of local or provincial views, but one who will govern in the interest of the whole empire and not alone of India itself.

Both these theories have been violated by Sir Henry's appointment. He is a soldier, and the greater part of his military service has been rendered in India, besides which he was for many years a government official there. Sir Henry's experience of five years as governor of Jamaica and nearly five years as governor of Queensland, supplemented by his intimate knowledge of Indian affairs, ought certainly to be considered in estimating his qualifications, and it is to be noticed that not even the severest of his critics has ventured to suggest that he is unfit.



SIR HENRY W. NORMAN.

Sir Henry Norman joined the Bengal army in 1844 and served as adjutant in the Thirty first native infantry throughout the Punjab campaign in 1848-9. He was in succeeding campaigns, was at the relief of Lucknow and the operations at Cawnpore. He was in 1862 military secretary to the government of India, in [illegible] member of the viceroy's council and in 1878 member of the council of India in London. In 1883 he was appointed governor of Jamaica, and in 1888 was transferred to Queensland. He is about 67 years of age and has won honors and decorations enough to entitle him to use the whole alphabet of initial letters after his name if that species of vanity were accepted.

DANIEL DEFOE, SIXTH.

A Living Descendant of the Great Author of "Robinson Crusoe."

The British bark Pharsalia had a young man on board as a sailor who was a descendant of the great author of "Robinson Crusoe" [illegible]. He came in [illegible] and [illegible] even a [illegible], but his name is one that will cause a thrill of pleasure in the heart of every boy in the land and revive again the recollections in the minds of every one who has ever been a boy. He is a descendant of Daniel Defoe, the great [illegible] author of the author of "Robinson Crusoe." He is not an author yet himself, but there is no knowing where his genius may lead him. Just now he is serving the last six months of his apprenticeship on the Pharsalia and acting steward in the galley.

He is a bright, good mannered young man of 19 years, without a trace of conceit about him, and none of the sailor's swagger. He is light complexioned, has blue eyes, well cut features and a firm chin. His appearance is altogether pleasing, and he is popular with his shipmates. He doesn't like the sea so well as he thought he would and is glad his apprenticeship is nearly over. This is the account he gave of himself as he stirred a mush in a stew on the galley stove:

"I was born in Chelmsford and lived there until I received a presentation to the old Blue Coat school in London [Daniel called it Bluecoat]. This was given to me on account of my name by Sir John Whittaker, lord mayor of London. It is a famous school, founded 341 years ago, and is attended by many of the ideally young swells of England. I staid there five years. It didn't cost me a cent, and a fine time I had there. When I left, I was apprenticed in a grocery shop and staid there a month, but I couldn't stand it, and I went to sea."

The scribe was not an old man himself and asked Daniel if he didn't care for Crusoe adventures. To which the young man answered:

"No, I thought of that once when we passed the isle of Juan Fernandez a year ago, but when my time is up I will go ashore and stay there. There is no strain of sailor blood in my family that I know of. My grandfather was an captain, and the only one that followed the sea, except myself. The first Daniel Defoe was not a sailor, though a good story teller. We have no family traditions about him that have not been printed. He seems to have been a great favorite with Queen Anne and the rest of them at court. He got in a good deal more trouble with the authorities, though, than I ever hope to have."

American Taste In Architecture.

Our domestic architecture is in a sad state when we look at it from the standpoint of external appearance, when people could borrow money to add all sorts of excrescences in the shape of wild looking porches and extravagant dormers, obtrusive gable and towers, that have been built for the most part in designs showing the extreme of coarseness. So it is that in the streets of many of our towns we have veritable architectural delirium, each builder undertaking to outdo the others in extraction and exaggerated effects. These designs in outline, moldings and general detail are as fierce and prone as possible, and when it comes to their painting they scream.

Combinations In Locks.

It has been proved that in a patent lock with an average sized key having six "steps," each capable of being reduced in height 20 times, the number of changes will be 86,400; further, that as the drill pins and the pipes of the keys may be made of three different sizes the total number of changes would be 2,592,000. In keys of the smallest size the total number would be 648,000, while in those of extraordinary size it could be increased to not less than 7,776,000 different changes.—St. Louis Republic.

Sly.

"I tell yo' wha, dat boy ob Pompey's am a sly little pleayune," remarked Uncle Cæsar darkly. "How's dat?" inquired the person addressed.

"It am jess dis a way," continued Uncle Cæsar. "I see dat boy down in a s'cluded corner ob de Soul Meetin house hoss sheds dar mawnin. He was standin wid his back to me, but I know his back jess like I do his face, an I suspicioned by de way he was stoopin down an makin his jaws go dat he was 'gaged on a watermillion."

"Sho, now!" ejaculated the listener.

"I crope up behin him an put my han gof' on his shoulder, an I say him, 'Gib me a taste o' dat watermillion, Gustus?' an dat boy turn like he was shot an—what do yo' pro-nostigate?"

"I gib it up," said the listener.

"Why, it wa'n't 'Gustus, true's yo' born niggah! 'Twas a boy jess the size an contformations ob 'Gustus, an he had a big slice ob watermillion, suro 'nuff, but 'twa'n't Gustus. An dat's what I mean 'bout his bein a sly little pleayune. Think ob him makin a fool ob me dat way!"—Youth's Companion.

An Old Soldier Made Happy.

"During the term of service in the army I contracted chronic diarrhœa," says A. E. Bending, of Halsey, Oregon. "Since then I have used a great amount of medicine, but when I found any that would give me relief they would injure my stomach, until Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhœa Remedy was brought to my notice. I used it and will say it is the only remedy that gave me permanent relief and no bad results follow." For sale by druggists.

WHY [illegible]

A Great [illegible]

The [illegible] for [illegible] measure [illegible]

"I've got a great [illegible]," he said mysteriously [illegible]

"What is it?" asked the C. E.

"Scheme for changing the color of red hair."

"Suppose people having it don't want it changed?" [illegible]

"They don't have to unless they want to. Nothing compulsory about it."

"What is it? Go on and explain."

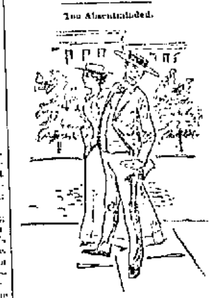
The visitor pulled up a chair.

"You know," he said, "that red hair is the result of a surplus of iron in the system. This is what imparts the vigor, the great activity, the overflowing and thorough [illegible] animal life that runs riot through the veins of the ruddy haired. And this strong [illegible] animal life is what renders them more intense in all their emotions than their more languid fellow creatures. The excess of iron causes the crop of freckles on the peculiarly clear, white skin which always accompanies red hair. The skin is abnormally sensitive to the action of the sun's rays, which not only bring out the little brown spots in abundance, but also burn like a mustard plaster, producing a queer, creepy sensation, as if the skin was wrinkling up. See?"

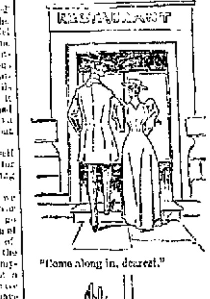
The city editor nodded.

"Well, now, what I propose to do is this," continued the schemer, "I'll arrange a steel barrel, with an armature around it connected with a 10 horse-power dynamo and make a magnet of it that will draw the rivets out of a boiler. Into that I'll put my patient for three hours every day, and I'll guarantee there won't be a sliver of iron in his system at the end of a week. Then by keeping it up a month or so in smaller doses the hair will assume some other color, and there you are. Ain't it a corker? Lend me a quarter to go out and make the first payment on my dynamo," and the C. E. let him have it.—Detroit Free Press.

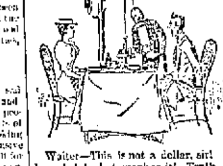
Too Absentminded.



Roland—Hello! Here's a dollar that I didn't know I had. I'll treat Nellie to some oysters!



"Come along in, dearest."



Waiter—This is not a dollar, sir! It has a lady's photograph in it!—Truth.

The Worst of It.

A well to do business man met an old acquaintance in his trade who had a decidedly shabby and forlorn look.

"Well, well! If this isn't doom!" exclaimed the prosperous man. "I haven't seen you on the Shoe and Leather Exchange for a long time."

"I haven't been there," answered the shabby man.

"Ah, retired from business?"

"Not exactly; on the contrary, business has retired from me!"—Youth's Companion.

Cause For Thanks.

Mrs. Youngwed (tearfully)—Oh, John the doctor says that darling baby has only got one lung!

Mr. Youngwed—Well, my dear, all I can say is, considering the awful row it makes with one lung, we ought to be deeply thankful that it hasn't got two!—Tit-Bits.

Reassuring.

"I've taken Bronson's house for the winter. You've lived there; how is the furnace?"

"All right, I guess. I occupied the house for the summer, and we were warm as could be."—Vogue.

A Novice.

A British farmer on board a steamer, suffering a good deal from the rolling, said to a friend: "This capt'n don't understand his business. Why don't he keep in the furrows?"—Argonaut.

A Specific for Croup.

"I consider Chamberlain's Cough Remedy a specific for croup. It is very pleasant to take, which is one of the most important requisites where a cough remedy is intended for use among children. I have known of cases of croup where I know the life of a little one was saved by the use of Chamberlain's Cough Remedy." J. J. LaGrange, druggist, Avoca, Neb. 50 cent bottles for sale by druggists.

"Hit with a brick" is an expression credited to America. But it had its origin in Rome. The standard coin in Rome was the as, or libra, and it weighed a pound. It was the shape of a brick, and when the influence of a Roman Senator was wanted it was obtained by giving him a libra, and the recipient was alluded to him as being "hit with a brick."

ANOTHER RUSH COMING.

All New York Preparing for a Visit to the Fair.

Brakeman House Badly Injured—A Remarkable Record—A Plea for the Block Signal System.

The Pennsylvania and the Nickel Plate roads anticipate the greatest movement towards Chicago next Thursday and Friday of any they have had during the world's fair season. October 21 is Manhattan day at the fair, and New York is going to do her best in the effort to beat Chicago day so far as attendance goes. It is hardly likely, however, that they will accomplish their object, but it is quite probable that the attendance on Manhattan day will be the second largest of the season. The greatest number of trains that have passed over the Pittsburg in one day so far was forty one. It is expected that next Friday nearly double that number of trains will pass through this city. The Nickel Plate also expects to run a train every hour on that day.

BRAKEMAN HOUSE INJURED.

F. G. House, a Pittsburg brakeman, was brought to this city on No. 8 Saturday evening and taken to St. Joseph hospital. At Warsaw Saturday afternoon, while making a coupling, House's foot caught in a frog and a car backed over him, crushing his right foot and breaking his right arm in four places, twice above and twice below the elbow. Dr. George C. Stemen is the attending surgeon.

A REMARKABLE RECORD.

W. H. Hoggs, a Big Four engineer, last Saturday completed the twenty-fifth year of his service with the company, and during the time no passenger or employe riding on any train his engine was hauling has been injured. That is certainly a good record, but the Pennsylvania and Wabash roads have employes that can show as good a record for a term of years extending away back to the fifties.

A DISCOURAGING OUTLOOK.

There is no change in the condition of the wheel trade and present indications are not favorable to a speedy resumption of operations at the Fort Wayne branch of the Standard Wheel works. The company's works, seven in number, are idle except those at Indianapolis and Terre Haute. The next to start up will be the works in this city, but unless business improves that much desired event will be long in coming. It is safe to say that snow will fly before there is much doing in the wheel trade in this city.

THE WIND CAUSED IT.

The wreck on the Nickel Plate, near Buffalo, last Saturday morning, and briefly mentioned in THE SENTINEL that evening, was caused by the wind blowing some freight cars from a siding to the main track just ahead of No. 3, the west-bound passenger train. The trains were delayed five hours, No. 5, due here at 4:45 p. m., not reaching this city until 10 o'clock. The company made up and sent out from Cleveland a train on No. 3's time, and annulled the regular, which was wrecked.

MUST HAVE THE BLOCK SYSTEM.

The catastrophe on the Michigan Central road, at Jackson, last Friday, should be taken as a warning to the effect that no railway over which there is a great amount of travel should be without a thoroughly effective and wisely proportioned block system. In an emergency like the present when all the rolling stock of the roads is likely to be pressed into service, it may very easily happen that defective air brake apparatus will be used and give way at a critical juncture. For this and other reasons it is essential that the space between trains going the same way shall be several miles, instead of a fraction of one mile, as seems to have been the case at Jackson.

MINOR MENTION.

Yard Engineer Westerman, of the Pittsburg, has returned from the world's fair.

H. D. Rose resumed his work on the Pittsburg this morning, after a few days' sickness.

William Hayes, hammer boy in the Pittsburg shops, is on duty again, having recovered from injuries to one of his eyes.

Casper Lemeronley, who was sick several days, returned to his work in the Pittsburg blacksmith shop this morning.

Andy Koontz, the well-known Pittsburg engineer, and his son, Henry, have gone to Chicago to attend the world's fair.

Dr. J. M. Kells, in connection with his own territory is temporarily looking after that of Dr. Lipes, of the Crest line district.

Ernest Fogtmeyer resumed his old position in the Pittsburg machine shop this morning, having returned from his wedding tour.

George Rhinesmith, William Altecruse and Adam Hoack, of Rhinesmith & Simonson's factory, have returned from the fair.

Sixty six people lost their lives in railway wrecks during the past seven weeks. There were five disasters and all but one were world's fair trains.

A movement is on foot to organize a foot ball team from the ranks of the Pittsburg machinists. There is plenty of material in that shop for a first class team.

W. W. Ruffen, superintendent of the American Refrigerator Transit company, with headquarters at St. Louis, was the guest of Fort Wayne friends over Sunday.

F. Z. Babcock, engineer at the electric light works, who has just returned from a meeting of the Union Veteran legion at Cincinnati, resumed his work this morning.

George Slater, seal clerk in the Pittsburg yards, who was severely injured several weeks ago, is now able to walk with the aid of crutches. He is still at St. Joseph's hospital.

Mrs. John Erickson presented her husband with a fine girl baby yesterday. The happy father is foreman of one of the departments of the Peters Box and Lumber works.

The friends of Mrs. Kitselman, wife of Nickel Plate Conductor William Kitselman, gave her a surprise last Saturday evening, the occasion being her twenty-eighth birthday.

Hubert Noble, route postal clerk, resumed his run today. He was slightly injured in the Pennsylvania wreck at Whiting a week ago and this is his first trip out since the accident.

Charlie Pierce, formerly a machinist in the Pittsburg shops here, but now of Wellsville, Ohio, spent Sunday in this city, the guest of his parents. He was en route to Wellsville from the world's fair.

Roadforeman A. H. Polhamus, of the Pittsburg, last week received ten class O and class S engines from the eastern lines of the Pennsylvania system. The engines were built in the Altoona shops.

The strike at the Big Four shops is at an end so far as the company is concerned. Superintendent Garstang Saturday said that he had all the machinists, boilermakers and blacksmiths he wanted.

Mesdames Joseph Carey and Anthony Girard, who were visiting relatives at Grass Creek, Ind., returned home Saturday evening. Messrs. Carey and Girard are blacksmiths employed in the Pittsburg shops.

H. Westerman, of 70 Buchanan street, Pittsburg yard engineer, is entertaining his father, R. Westerman, of Nickerson, Kansas. The latter formerly lived out near Leo, and was one of our best known farmers a few years ago.

Pittsburg engine 124 was taken in the shops Saturday morning with the pilot broken and the front of her boiler smashed in, and this morning was turned out in complete running order. The machinists worked all Saturday night in making the repairs.

George H. Judy, foreman of the Pittsburg blacksmith shop, has invented a metal forging machine for making the Christie brakeshoe key. The forging is accomplished by means of rollers over a die and is something wonderful in its line. Mr. Judy has applied for a patent.

Mr. and Mrs. Clark Slocum came down from Grand Rapids yesterday afternoon and were the guests of Mr. and Mrs. Hugh Hogan over night. This morning the visitors left for Chicago to attend the fair. Mr. Slocum is foreman of the copper shops at Grand Rapids.

Dr. J. M. Kells this morning received the monthly statement of the Pennsylvania Voluntary Relief association. There was paid out during September $9,479.23 as follows: Accidental death, $750; natural deaths, $1,250; disablements by accidents, $1,[illegible]; disablements by sickness $2,[illegible]. The association is in a flourishing condition and is increasing in membership.

The machinists in the Pittsburg shops took up the work of building a class X engine, No. 288, this morning. So far the shops in this city have built twenty three of these engines. The class X was designed by Draughtsman William Stephan for heavy passenger service in the mountains of Pennsylvania.

FAMILY POISONED.

Strychnine Placed in Their Edibles by Someone.

The Father, Mother, Two Children and a Visitor All Stricken Down by the Deadly Drug.

NEVADA, Mo., Oct. 16.—The first authentic story of a wholesale poisoning at Jerico Springs is just known. The town is many miles distant from a railroad or telegraph line, and therefore not readily accessible.

Monday night Irvin Comstock, his wife, little son and a neighbor, Mrs. Wallace, partook of the fatal supper.

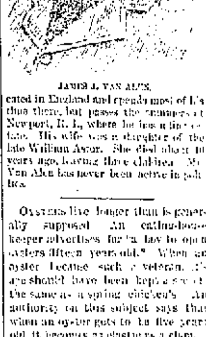
Doctors were hastily summoned and worked with the stricken family all night. At 8 o'clock next evening Mrs. Wallace died in great agony and Wednesday morning Mr. Comstock died in a spasm.

Mrs. Comstock is now dying and Mrs. McCrary, who has been acting as nurse in the stricken home, is also in the throes of death from having drank a cup of coffee prepared from the family's provisions.

The boy is out of danger. An examination of the edibles showed all to contain strychnine.

James J. Van Alen.

James J. Van Alen, appointed by President Cleveland United States embassador to Italy, is about 47 years old. He was born in New York city and possesses a fortune variously estimated at from $12,000,000 to $15,000,000. He was educated in England and spends most of his time there, but passes the summers at Newport, R. I., where he has a fine estate. His wife was a daughter of the late William Astor. She died about 10 years ago, leaving three children. Mr. Van Alen has never been active in politics.



JAMES J. VAN ALEN.

Oysters live longer than is generally supposed. An eating-house keeper advertises for "a boy to open oysters fifteen years old." When an oyster became such a veteran its age should have been kept a secret. The same as a spring chicken's. An authority on this subject says that when an oyster gets to be five years old it becomes as elastic as a clam.

Needs assistance it may be best to render it promptly, but one should remember to use even the most perfect remedies only when needed. The best and most simple and gentle remedy is the Syrup of Figs manufactured by the California Fig Syrup Co.

They Give Their Reasons.

Perhaps some of our readers would like to know in what respect Chamberlain's Cough Remedy is better than any other, we will tell you. When this remedy is taken as soon as a cold has been contracted, and before it has become settled in the system, it will counteract the effect of the cold and greatly lessen it's severity, and it is the only remedy that will do this. It acts in perfect harmony with nature and aids nature in relieving the lungs, opening the secretions, liquefying the mucus and causing its expulsion from the air cells of the lungs and restoring the system to a strong and healthy condition. No other remedy in the market possesses these remarkable properties. No other will cure a cold so quickly. For sale by druggists.

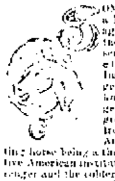
BREEDING TROTTERS.

ORLOFF-AMERICAN FAMILY OF RECORD MAKERS.

Will Be the Coming Breed—Future Fate of the Russian Equine Immigrants Is Somewhat Problematical—Mixing the Blood.



Something over a hundred years ago the great gray thoroughbred Messenger was imported to this country. Imported Messenger, as all the world knows, is the progenitor of all the great families of trotting horses in America, the trotting horse being a thoroughly distinctive American institution. From Messenger and the colder blooded American mares the modified animal that has since become the great American trotter sprung, and by what boys often term inbreeding, careful selection, cultivation and development has been evolved out what he is to day. Whether we have reached the limit of his achievement is a question concerning which opinions differ among horsemen. The "trotter" has in the past year suffered considerable demolition at the flying feet of Nancy Hanks, and that the mare is so built as to be able to make much better time than her present mark of 2:04 is a proposition in mechanics yet to be demonstrated. Our breeders are doing their best to solve this problem, however, and one of the latest moves in this direction is the importation from Russia of some prize specimens of the famous Orloff horses of this country.

These animals, several of which will hereafter be transferred to the great breeding establishment at Palo Alto, where, a short time previous to his death, Senator Stanford conceived the idea of trying some new experiments in the breeding line, and hoped, it is said, to obtain some improved and distinctive result from crossing the Orloff blood with some of the well known American strains there represented.

The Orloff horses are a distinctive family that for many years were bred and developed by the late Count Orloff in Russia. At his death, some years ago, his widow sold his entire stud to the czar, who has in no way slackened the vigilance and care maintained by the originator of the strain to keep the race pure and the standard of excellence high among the animals.

The horses are descended from animals of Oriental origin, the Barbs of the plains and Arabs of the desert crossed with the best of the high-class Russian horses. Years of careful breeding, selection and training have produced this distinctive type of horse, which is a magnificent creature in its way.

Whether the American trotter has, however, anything to gain from an infusion of Orloff blood in his veins is a question for the future to decide. At first thought it hardly seems likely. Except the American horse, the Orloff is the only distinctly trotting horse in the world. England has no trotters, as that word is understood in this country, and while France has of late years done a great deal to encourage the breeding and development of this gait, the results, so far, have scarcely been noticeable, and as yet have produced nothing distinctive. There have been a few good trotters "made in France," but there has still no great trotting family originated in that country, so that Russia and America stand alone as lands where the trotter is at home. Even in Russia, however, the Orloff horses are about the only horses. The ordinary Russian horse does his work in harness at a gallop, and only trots when a leisurely pace is desired by the driver. Of the Orloffs, too, not a great many have attained any great speed. The Russian trotting records are all made to wagon, though, and with the introduction of American methods and the American sulky among them, some very low marks may yet be obtained among them. Even as it is, the bay stallion Krakus, who is now in America, made a record, last summer in Russia, of one and a half versts (81 feet less than a mile) in 2:20, a record which, with further development he will undoubtedly lower. There is also in the train a 2-year-old filly who is held by the Russian trainer above wealth and favor. Provornia-Troutsaka as a yearling was phenomenally fast, a revelation, it is said, to the Russians, who had never before seen a yearling trot a quarter in forty seconds. Such yearlings, in fact, are rare, even in California, the home of so many phenomenal equine babies.

Of the three animals that are to be sent to Palo Alto there are two stallions and a mare. The latter is a snow white animal, exquisitely modeled, it is said, with magnificent feet and legs, and pronounced by expert judges a model brood mare. Verboslenik, one of the stallions, is also white, Gurialnik, his mate, being black. The two horses were foaled in the government stud, Khrenovoy, and are sent here, with the mare, in exchange for animals from Palo Alto. In a word the late Senator Stanford and the Czar of Russia exchanged horses and the Russian exchanges have just arrived.

The effect upon our American horses of this new blood can hardly be an increase of speed—the Yankee animal already has the greater proportion of that on his side—but it may result, a consummation devoutly to be wished, in the development of better legs and feet and greater staying power in our fast trotters. The Orloff horses are said to have, as individuals, excellent legs and feet, good bone and sinew. Our American trotters, on the contrary, are becoming noticeably lacking in these qualities. The American horse is, as a rule, very light and delicate, below the knee and knee. In their haste to break records our breeders have produced speed very largely at the expense of bone and substance and are now beginning to appreciate this fact.

Those who know the Orloff horses have great hopes that the Orloff-American trotter is the coming type of the noble animal. Whether results will justify the hopes, time alone will tell. It is, however, a good deal of pity that the breaking up of the great est horse-breeding establishment in the world and the scattering abroad of the great trotters there collected should occur just at this time, as it may materially affect results in the interesting experiments the late owner of Palo Alto was minded to try. In fact, the future fate of our Russian equine immigrants is at present somewhat problematic. That they will, however, receive hospitable treatment at the hands of California breeders goes without saying. If any benefit is to be derived from this new mingling of strains, California is the place for the development of the new race. We have the enterprise, experience and love of the animals among the horsemen, and California is preeminently a horse-raising state. There may be a great future before the Orloff-American trotter, and it is no more than poetic justice that the Pacific Slope, which scientists tell us is really the earliest known home of the horse, should have the honor of producing and developing him.

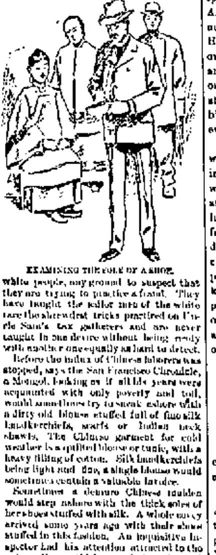
CHINESE SMUGGLERS.

How the Artful Mongols Deceive Uncle Sam's Customs Officers.

The customs officers of San Francisco have to deal with some of the most artful smugglers in the world. The Chinese are a race of smugglers, and there is not a people on earth more fertile in expedients to evade the revenue laws. Their stolid, impassive demeanor serves them admirably in their contraband operations, for their actions seldom afford, as is the case frequently with white people, any ground to suspect that they are trying to practice a fraud. They have taught the sailor men of the white race the shrewdest tricks practiced on Uncle Sam's tax gatherers and are never caught in one device without being ready with another one equally as hard to detect.



EXAMINING THE SOLE OF A SHOE.

Before the influx of Chinese laborers was stopped, says the San Francisco Chronicle, a Mongol, looking as if all his years were acquainted with only poverty and toil, would sometimes try to sneak ashore with a dirty old blouse stuffed full of fine silk handkerchiefs, scarfs or Indian neck shawls. The Chinese garment for cold weather is a quilted blouse or tunic, with a heavy filling of cotton. Silk handkerchiefs being light and fine, a single blouse would sometimes contain a valuable invoice.

Sometimes a demure Chinese maiden would step ashore with the thick soles of her shoes stuffed with silk. A whole covey arrived some years ago with their shoes stuffed in this fashion. An inquisitive inspector had his attention attracted to the extraordinary thickness of the soles, and made an investigation, which resulted in a valuable seizure.

To a man the Chinese crews on the steamers plying between San Francisco and Mexico, South America and the orient are smugglers. They hide their contraband goods in the oddest places imaginable, and get them ashore past the eyes of the customs officers in ways that almost baffle detection.

They have brought opium skillfully stuffed in bananas still hanging to the stalk and in oranges. One day, about six years ago, a Chinese dressed as a cook walked leisurely down the gangplank of a Pacific Mail steamer with a basket on his arm containing several loaves of bread. He shuffled right by a custom house officer and would have got away all right, but on the wharf came into collision with a drunken sailor. The sailor, who was to blame, gave the Chinese a violent shove, sending him sprawling and scattering his bread loaves. A policeman interfered and noticed that one of the loaves had broken open. He started to examine, and the Chinese started to run. Every loaf was filled with opium.

Chinese have been detected with boxes of the drug deftly bound up in their cues or tied under their arms. Every bit of baggage and every article they take ashore is a hiding place.

Beams on ship and table legs have been hollowed out as receptacles for contraband opium. False bottoms are put in cubby holes and pantry drawers. Hiding places are sought in coal bunkers and under the engines and boilers. The methods of secretion are so varied and ingenious that frequently the officers are unable to find smuggled opium, even after they have definite information that it is aboard a vessel. Only recently the officers failed to find a lot, although they knew positively that it was on board. However, keeping the closest watch on everything that left the ship, they finally intercepted the opium as it was being taken ashore.

Several years ago the officials were informed that a hole had been hollowed out under the stern of one of the China steamers as a receptacle for smuggled opium. When the steamer arrived, they made a search and found a hole large enough to contain between $3,000 and $4,000 worth of the drug, but it was empty. It had been dumped out into the bay off Fort Point, with floats attached. A considerable portion of it was picked up. A regular business was for awhile maintained by throwing the opium overboard, with floats attached to long lines, for confederates to pick up and take ashore in boats, but the officers became cognizant of it and broke it up.

Once a box containing the bones of a dead Chinaman was placed on a steamer at Victoria to be brought here for shipment to China. An accident caused it to be closely examined, when a large quantity of opium was found concealed under the bones. Large quantities of opium have been smuggled in barrels of salt fish and in lumber.

Expects to Die Before Election Day.

A year ago Levi Layman, a prosperous farmer living near Calhoon, N. Y., had a dream, in which, he says, his deceased wife appeared to him and told him he would join her on or before Nov. 7, 1893. He has implicit faith in the prediction and is preparing for his death at that time. This year he planted no crops other than would suffice to provide for his wants to Nov. 7. He has made his will and intends to have charge of the digging of his grave, and will order his coffin and burial clothes. Layman has suffered from rheumatism, and faith curists tried to heal him, but he dismissed them, desiring their prayers in his behalf discontinued. He is 60 years old.

A Strange Superstition.

In Bosnia the people have believed at all times that a bridge could not be firm and lasting unless a human being was walled up in it. Thus there is a legend connected with the handsome Roman bridge at Mostar, which says that the fine arch across the Narenta could not be finished until the architect walled up in it a bridal pair. Now that a solid bridge is being built across the Save at Brazka this superstition is revived. It is rumored everywhere that gypsies are stealing children to sell them to the contractors, who will wall one up in each pillar.

Will Abolish the Knout.

A St. Petersburg correspondent says that an imperial ukase will shortly be issued abolishing the practice of knouting by the police.

A Popular Canadian Novelist.

Mr. Gilbert Parker, the popular Canadian novelist, is but 32 years of age and was born in Canada. He was educated at Trinity college, Toronto, and at one time thought seriously of entering the Episcopalian ministry, but gave up the idea to follow his bent for literature. He lectured for a time on literary subjects at Toronto university and then went to Australia, where he spent several years in the employ of the Sydney Herald, traveling about among the islands of the South seas and studying the conditions of life in the southern hemisphere. The result of his travels he embodied in two books, "Round the Compass In Australia" and "Below the Sea Line." Three years ago Mr. Parker went to London, where he has since devoted himself almost entirely to fiction.

RILEY AND SHIRLEY.

Masonic Temple, Oct. 17th.

What a treat for the intelligent readers of our city. The public appearance of James Whitcomb Riley and Douglass Sherly are being hailed with delight by thousands of the few privileged cities where they appear jointly. The greatest enthusiasm prevails. Men and women are swayed by these twin spirits of genius from laughter to tears. All speak in their praise. Who has not heard of the sunny souled Hoosier? He speaks his own songs and tells his own droll stories and they are our songs and stories. He enjoys it and adds to our enjoyment. He is absolutely unaffected, his genial soul looks through his genial face and no frown or sneer ever rests there.

Mr Sherley is a polished man of the world, a gentleman by birth and training, and a scholar, and lover of that which is good in the arts in general and that special art which we term literature. He has no need to seek favor at the hands of a public which does not always know how to appreciate and although this is his first appearance in Fort Wayne he will soon know that our people know how to appreciate men like himself. This visit of Riley and Sherley is unexpected, and an evening with them is a treat no one will want to miss.

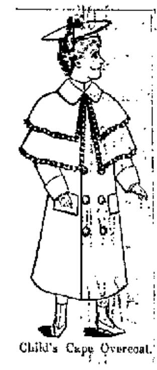
FACTS ARE STUBBORN THINGS!



Child's Cape Overcoat.

WHAT More Eloquent proof could be furnished of the SUPERIORITY of our Merchandise than the unstinted encomiums of the people themselves who have visited our store this season and seen the
